This is the official web site for Autodesk AutoCAD Raster Design 2019. Autodesk AutoCAD Raster Design 2019 (x86) for WindowsÂ .Got a swanky new camera? No need to keep it hidden away – it can now double up as a selfie machine. As long as you've got a smartphone attached to the lens, you can take advantage of a brand new feature called Live Zoom. Live Zoom uses geolocation to predict the distance between the iPhone/iPad and its owner – and displays a live view of the back of their face onto the screen. Scroll down for video A new app called Live Zoom from the Instagram app, allow users to take a selfie and use the app to zoom in to make their face appear larger The app uses geolocation to predict where the user is and displays a live view of their face on their phone's screen HOW IT WORKS Live Zoom currently only works with the iPhone, but the app's creator says the technology will be made available to other smartphones in the near future. The new feature uses a camera's geolocation capabilities to work out where the user is. It predicts that they are some two metres away from their phone. The app then crops the live image and magnifies it so that you can see yourself with the background behind you. It only appears as the user’s face in the image, and so cannot be used in the same way as the front-facing FaceTime camera. Other apps such as Snapchat and Yfrog have allowed you to show people behind you as long as you press the front-facing camera – but this will allow you to see yourself in more detail, and zoom in as much as you like. So far, the app's been demonstrated using the iPhone 5S, but the live technology will be made available to other smartphones in the near future. Advertisement 'Live Zoom' is an expansion of the 'Zoom' feature, which was added to the iPhone 4S three years ago. The new app uses geolocation to predict where the user is and displays a live view of their face on their phone’s screen. The app also allows users to take a selfie, crop it and then magnify the picture so that their face appears larger. It only appears as the user's face in the image, and so cannot be used in the same way as the 648931e174
