Numerous tweaks and improvements have been made to the skills animation system, in addition to new animations for "strong" passes and defenders, which are important for control. Further tweaks and refinements have been made to ball control. Real-life players are now more responsive to your inputs, and dribbling, which has changed considerably, is now more fun. Player transitions are also improved, and serve as an important part of control. The focus on better ball control creates the opportunity for run and pass animations to be improved and for more subtle timing to be introduced to control, which will probably be very welcome for players who struggle to pass. The motion analysis engine is improved, too, with more accurate ball physics, for example, while the system for controlling the stamina of the players also remains unchanged, for the most part. As with FIFA 19, a ball is now able to be controlled with the right stick or the right analogue stick - though the game now labels the action with an orange/white square symbol on a yellow/black square, to make it easier to distinguish it. This is now also consistent between the two sticks and means that FIFA now allows better movement control without losing the touch pass when using the right stick. It's a highly visual game, and the player models have been well realised, although the field of view is often restricted, and the graphics are generally very good. The number of player models, and the number of real-life player animations, have increased on FIFA 21 and this is reflected in a number of new in-game camera positions and angles, such as a 360-degree camera that still shows cuts to the pitch below the stadium and a game-camera angles that allows a wider view of the player models. Interestingly, this means that FIFA 22 will also feature gameplay from the outside of the stadium, meaning that we will get to see more of the players and fans that are often used for cut-scenes and camera angles. There's also a motion blur effect now, used to blur out cars that are flying past the player. The stadiums have been refined and improved and a number of new venues have been added to the game, including Liverpool's Anfield Stadium, AC Milan's San Siro and Juventus' old ground, Stadio Delle Alpi. For centuries, FIFA has stood for excellence in football, uniting millions of fans around the world. Originally released for MSX and Game Gear, FIFA then made the transition to consoles and mobile devices. Now, FIFA is the videogame that captures the heartbeat of your club or country with the freedom to play, communicate, and share your passion for football just as you would in real life. How can I play FIFA? You can play FIFA on your living room TV or play it on your smartphone and tablet. You can play in teams or head-to-head matches, and start your own Ultimate Team™, all from your couch. FIFA is the perfect game for fans, to get fans. It's easy to pick up, learn, and play. What are the big innovations in FIFA? Meet the biggest innovation in video games: the new FIFA. Uniquely, this year the game comes not only with the world's most authentic football engine, it also delivers new ways to play, be part of your club or country, and engage with your teammates and opponents. In one of the biggest gameplay changes, live coaches are no longer required to give advice, a real-world time-waster. There is also a brand-new dribbling system, smarter free kicks, and much more. Now get to playing and see for yourself why millions of people love FIFA like never before. Live the action. Be part of the team. Feel the passion. PLAY AS A CROSSBOW-WIELDING FRENCH NAILER. You're a French Nailer—the tool with which a footballer pricks himself to leave a pitch mark before taking to the field. With a whir of the crossbow, you fire that tool directly into opponents and claim a foul. Better yet, even the most demanding opponents will find it hard to tell you from the referees—once the game starts, they'll be unaware that you are even a player. Every foul is called in complete confidence and as long as you're not directly targeting the ball, every referee (even the ones from the TV broadcasts) will think you're acting in perfect harmony with the Laws of the Game. BRING 'EM TO THEIR KNEES. You're a pro in the technical category; watching your opponents running towards you to get bc9d6d6daa

What's new in Fifa 22:

- FIFA 22 introduces “HyperMotion Technology,” which uses motion capture data collected from 22 real-life players playing a complete, high-intensity football match in motion capture suits. The data collected from player movements, tackles, aerial duels and on-ball actions is used to power FIFA 22 gameplay.
- First-person view (new camera type). Packed with power, new camera type also opens new levels of creativity for players to connect with the game - and challenge their creativity with unseen sporting moments, never before experienced in a football game.
- Team of the Week - the first time globally that FIFA has brought together all of the best players to create Team of the Week. Each week, the best 11 players in the game are selected by FIFA’s Team of the Year, featuring four forwards, four midfielders and three defenders.
- New AI system. Features a new challenge to match human intelligence and continues to push and evolve AI methodology. Allows for increased levels of realism, faster and reactive AI, and deeper strategic play by AI teams.
- Player Retraining - players now retain their historical attributes after every game, meaning you’ll get the best out of them every time. This also means that for the first time, FIFA will retroactively recognise players from transfers between editions of the game and enable them to use their attributes right from the first game without having to retrain.
- Career Progression. Career progression tracking has been perfected. All players get assigned a Personal Rating score based on their current skill set which will improve as they play. It will act as an indicator for the game to give a more realistic impression of the level of player improvement that the player will enjoy.
- New Stage Player Ratings - the Skillshot and Acceleration ratings are now included in the new 614 AMR sprint rating, which counts towards the new global “Prediction” Rating. The lower the number is, the more accurate the player’s overall feel will be, especially for dribbling, passing, technical abilities, improvisation and shooting.

- The Journeyman Player, used across
