Also, if a user tries to create a post without an image, I return false or throw an exception. The error message that I get in the browser is fine. But I just noticed that if the user tries to create a post with no image, but the validator checks that they have one, the validation error is hidden under the user-typed message, which makes it very hard to see. Is there a way to catch the error using javascript? A: The ErrorMessage property will be what you get from a validation error when jQuery is in the Page, i.e. by using the ValidationSummary control.

1. Field of the Invention This invention is related to a method for manufacturing honeycomb molded polymers, and more particularly to a method for manufacturing honeycomb molded polymers having uniform strength.

2. Description of the Prior Art Many honeycomb molded polymers are used in various fields because of their high mechanical strength and heat-resistance. For example, transparent polystyrene resins are used to manufacture display cases or prisms for light guides and optical sensors. Another example is a large composite sheet used for fishing nets. Heretofore, methods for manufacturing honeycomb molded polymers involved applying a powder or slurry of a polymer as is, dipping a honeycomb mold in a slurry or powder of the polymer, or moulding powder of a polymer with a predetermined shape in a shaping mold, or cutting a sheet of polypropylene resin into a predetermined shape. However, a honeycomb molded polymer obtained by using the latter method is problematic in that the strength of the honeycomb molded polymer is low when the diameter of the honeycomb molded polymer is small. Further, a honeycomb molded polymer obtained by using the former method is problematic in that it is likely to be deformed during the handling thereof, and in that the strength of the honeycomb molded polymer obtained is not uniform. Accordingly, it is an object of this invention to provide a method for manufacturing honeycomb molded polymers having uniform strength and having excellent transparency, in which
