The Nova Scotia Veterinary College (NSVC) is seeking funding support for the execution of a quality-control plan for a Veterinary Pharmacology/Toxicology Research Program at the NSVC. The objectives are to provide strong educational, research and professional development opportunities for all veterinarians in Nova Scotia, and to build an inter-disciplinary research environment based on a community of veterinarians, medicine and science. The proposed Veterinary Pharmacology/Toxicology Research Program will be based on an Administrative and Student Development core and three Research Cores: (1) Behavioral Pharmacology, (2) Studies of ADME and (3) Tumor Targeted Therapies. The Program will develop a strong support infrastructure at the college and partner with universities across North America. Major components of the Program are (1) a postgraduate course in Clinical Pharmacology and Pharmacology for Veterinarians and (2) graduate and Postdoctoral Research Program. The overall aim of the Program is to provide students the opportunity to gain the skills to use pharmacology to improve health and disease in people and animals, and to lead a research program that investigates the efficacy of alternative therapies in addition to traditional pharmaceutical medicines. A clear understanding of the pharmacology and toxicology of drugs and other related chemicals is required to develop safer drugs and to provide effective therapies. To meet this goal NSVC proposes a basic research training program that consists of a broad based exposure to pharmacology and pharmacokinetics, and
