They are normally made of nylon, or like material, and are used in cleaning a range of household items and surfaces, including, but not limited to, lavatory walls, tiles, cars, windows, shower screens and ovens. They are also used in the cleaning and decorating industries, and may be used to clean and polish furniture. They are also used by painters to remove dirt and powder from their brushes. A housewife needs to keep a scrub brush at hand for a variety of household tasks. These include polishing the fronts of wooden surfaces, removing oil from car engines and dry-wall surfaces, cleaning vases, cleaning windows, and cleaning tiles. A scrub brush that has a synthetic fiber strand that is tightly woven into a nylon net is called a case brush. The scrub brush often has a handle made of a material such as plastic, a hard stick, or wood. References Category:Broom="fig"}). A tentative pairing was generated on the basis of sequence conservation (I-value $\gt 0.6$) and structure conservation (D-value $\gt 0.4$) (Figure [4{ref-type="fig"}](#fig4){ref-type="fig"}A,B). Conformational Comparisons of the Target-Bound 45/p53 Complex and Its Contacts to the Ligand {#sec4.4}

----- The structural comparisons were performed in the target-bound 45/p53 complex to visualize direct contacts and their changes upon the ligand binding (Figure [4{ref-type="fig"}](#fig4){ref-type="fig"}C). Our modeling study clearly demonstrated that both compounds 45 and 46 interact with the C-terminus of p53 (Figures [1{ref-c6a93da74d
