The tip of the iceberg of Windows 8 build leakage has surfaced today in form of leaked Windows 8 build 7850. The leaked build 7850 which is not even out yet has also turned out to be an expired build, which means it will not be able to be installed and used after 30 days. Hence, the leaked build 7850 is a perfect one for Windows enthusiasts to tinker with and download and try out the new features. Windows 10's docked mode allows your tablet to be just like a notebook. You can use your keyboard with the ability to detach it, but it still has all the features of a tablet. Like Windows 8.1, it includes a task switcher that moves between all of your open apps, and you can open the Start menu by pressing the Windows key and the down arrow. The Start menu is still available on the top, unlike Windows 8.1. It also has a power menu with options to sleep, shut down, restart, hibernate, and lock the screen. It also has an Action Center for quick access to messages, alerts, and other messages. You can drag apps from the Start menu to anywhere on the desktop, and the dock still works, like Windows 8.1. Microsoft has not only improved the Windows Phone platform for their smartphones, but also included an Office app on Windows 10. This allows you to access the Office suite on your smartphone. You can view documents, edit them, and make presentations as if you were using them on a PC. Beyond that, Microsoft has also taken control of the Messaging, Social, and Store apps, so Windows 10 has built-in social media apps for Twitter, LinkedIn, and Facebook, as well as an Xbox live app. It also includes an app to find and manage installed apps, and a power saving option, which allows you to switch on and off the system remotely.
