once you've signed up, you'll want to be connected to wifi before you start playing. no matter where you download your game from, it'll provide you with an ip address, and this will let you connect to the online servers and play in multiplayer. if you want a sneak peek before your game launches, go to the playstation home online store and you'll see a countdown to the release date. this can be a useful indicator of when you can expect to be playing online. when you first start up gta online, you'll be prompted to select a city. the idea behind this is to ensure you stay in your city, which will be helpful when it comes to hopping out of los santos, shooting people, and more. as you progress through the game, you'll want to keep returning to the city where you're base is, as this is where you can rack up extra cash, and has a good amount of safe spots. once you're up and running, you'll be presented with the career management menu, and here you can adjust the amount of money you want to spend. you'll also be able to adjust how many wanted posters you want to collect. as you play online you'll find people of all sorts of skill levels. some people will spend their time huffing petrol with a rocket launcher, running away from police and shooting them with machine guns. others will spend their time running around stealing cars for insurance. if you want to be one of the latter, then you need to be stealthy, and ensure you're not standing out in the open. this will make it much easier for police to track you down and make your life difficult. but if you see a police car that's cruising around aimlessly, then it might be worth getting into the vehicle for a bit of a free-for-all. you can also use a quad bike and pinwheel to distract police if you're having trouble avoiding a police car.

it may seem like the best way to get the most out of gta online is to stay out of trouble, but you'll find that you can get into fights if you just get a little bored. this is fine as long as you don't let it last too long, and get back to what you were doing before you encountered your challenger. you can also find other players who want to get into fights and then they'll fight you. the best solution to this is to find another group of people to fight with - in the same way you can find groups of people to do stuff with, you can find other people to join a team with. if you find yourself fighting with a group of other players in a vehicle, you should be aware that the vehicle is more likely to be marked and therefore more likely to be robbed, so stick to fighting on foot and then get out of the vehicle. set up a private session on ps4 or xbo. by default, all gta online players are in public sessions, so by enabling private sessions, you will be able to play with a random player that will not be following you around. you can get into a public session by either choosing online -> find new session, or selecting a job to jump into. to play in private, you can either go into the online menu, select players and then choose the public players option, or you can just choose online -> find new session. once you've selected the type of session you want to play in, simply select the player you wish to play with, and you're all set. now that you've setup a private session, the next thing you need to do is to find a place to play. gta online is incredibly huge, and even the most experienced players can find it difficult to find other players to play with in a public session, so this is the perfect time to grab your friends and hit the roads. to start off, you can use the online -> find new session or online -> find opponent on your ps4 or xbox one to find other players. then, you can get into a public session and search for another player to join. this will give you a chance to explore the massive world and hang out with other players in a public session, while you try to get to grips with gta online. 5ec8ef588b
