What's New In Small Foto Viewer?

Your computer is infected with a adware which redirects you to various adult and/or pornographic websites every time you visit a particular Web page. You are asked to pay $49 to remove the adware by clicking on the Uninstall Tool button. Once you have clicked on the Uninstall Tool button, a new browser page will open and it will ask you to pay $49 by entering the credit card information. After making the payment you will be given a warning message that you need to pay the fee to remove the adware from your computer. It may ask you to open a fake page in your browser so it can display your login page for a similar Web site that has similar contents. You may also see a fake browser warning message that your computer has a potential security threat. You need to pay the fee to remove this warning message. You need to open the fake login page to enable the payment by entering the credit card information. The page also displays the message that you need to pay a fee of $49 to remove the adware from your computer. Once you pay the fee of $49, you will be given a fake page in your browser that will ask you to purchase a good and you will be given a warning message. You will also be asked to open a fake website that will display fake reviews and fake offers. This is done to increase the chances of selling the fake good to you. Once you make the payment, you will be asked to install a set of other adware programs. Once you make the payment and install the set of adware, you will be redirected to an adult and/or pornographic website. Scam. In a strange way, this is the title of my report. I have observed that this false invoice has been distributed for a long time and I have discovered that a new version of this malware is in circulation today. It is named "GoDaddy - Invoice Scanner".
